Dear Sir:

In our conversation of 13 January, we informed you that we would forward to you a draft of the type of contract which has been arranged with other suppliers, which you might use as a guide in preparing your draft contract proposal for us. You will remember that in our conversations, we outlined a proposed overseas contract duration of eighteen months, without dependents. This would provide for such items as a base salary, an overseas differential to be paid upon completion of the contract, and a hold-back-of-salary provision in order to cover any expenses incurred by us in returning a man to the U.S. prior to expiration of his contract, if such return should be necessitated by action of the employee. This hold-back would also increase the total sum payable to the man upon successful completion of the stipulated contract. Provisions would also be made for home leave in the U.S., local leave, insurance, etc.

We would appreciate receiving from you your proposal for such a personal services contract in order that arrangements may be finalized as soon as possible.

Very truly yours,

George
